Components of remuneration

- Remuneration at Fletcher Building includes a mix of both fixed and variable (incentive) components.

Fixed remuneration

- Fixed remuneration includes base salary and any non-cash benefits and superannuation/KiwiSaver, where applicable.
- Positions are sized to provide a guide for determining an appropriate level of remuneration. They are sized against common criteria to ensure a consistent, equitable approach. Each role is allocated to a Fletcher Building band according to the evaluation outcome which takes into consideration the accountabilities of and competencies required for the role. Jobs are evaluated on inception or whenever required e.g. significant change to the role.
- The Hay Group remuneration database for industrial and service organisations is used to determine current and forecast external remuneration rates and movements for all roles, with the exception of those reporting directly to the Chief Executive Officer. Remuneration packages are structured based on country and industry practice.
- Fixed remuneration for individuals is generally set based on capability, performance and industry benchmarks.
- In the case of roles reporting directly to the Chief Executive Officer, pay comparators are derived from a remuneration benchmark pool of Australian and New Zealand companies, adopted at the company's sole discretion, and approved by the Remuneration Committee.
- Benchmarks are to be used as a guideline and not considered absolute.

Variable remuneration

- Variable remuneration can include short-term and/or long-term incentives, both operate entirely at the discretion of the company. Any short-term incentive (STI) is provided in the form of a cash bonus, while any long term incentive (LTI) is typically provided in the form of shares.
- The operation of any variable incentive plans and any payment under such is entirely at the Company's or Board's discretion. Participants of any STI and / or LTI plan will be notified of their participation or eligibility on an annual basis, and details of any plan will be provided to eligible participants.

Short-term incentive remuneration (STI)

- STI remuneration recognises, on a discretionary basis, the achievement by eligible individuals of Company and individual performance objectives. Unless specifically otherwise determined, STI opportunity is expressed as a percentage of nominal base remuneration according to job category as determined in the annual invitation letter. Actual STI (if any) is determined by performance against financial targets and individual objectives or performance targets as appropriate.

- Participation in the STI plan and the payment of any STI opportunity available for any given financial year is at the sole discretion of the company. The company operates two STI plans, these are the senior leader plan, of which the Executive Committee and direct reports to Chief Executives are invited to, and the general STI plan, of which other eligible employees are invited to. In some instances, direct reports to Chief Executives may be invited to the general STI plan at the discretion of the respective Chief Executive.
- The STI plans and applicable rules are subject to periodic review and variation with appropriate approval. The plan applicable to the Executive Committee and direct reports to Chief Executives (other than those invited to the general STI plan) is reviewed by the Remuneration Committee with Board approval. The STI plan applicable to all other employees is reviewed by the Chief People Officer with Chief Executive Officer approval.
- For the Executive Committee and direct reports to Chief Executives the Board has the discretion to require repayment of an STI for a period of up to three years from the end of the applicable financial year, where the Company's financial statements were incorrectly reported, there is misconduct that causes a financial trading loss that has not been taken into account in the STI calculations or an error or misstatement has resulted in a material overpayment.

Other incentive plans

- Business units may operate other incentive compensation and/or productivity sharing plans, providing an opportunity to earn a variable component of remuneration on a discretionary basis in addition to fixed remuneration. Any such plans are subject to prior written approval of the relevant Divisional Chief Executive, in consultation with the Divisional General Manager People and Performance, and regular review, and at all times must conform to the following core principles:
 - Incentive plans should align participating employees with the key goals of the relevant Business unit or subsidiary company;
 - They should be performance based and any incentive payment should be based on the achievement of specific, objectively measurable targets;
 - Incentive plans should provide for payment in proportion to performance achieved and provide for no incentive to be payable if the business unit cannot afford it;
 - Incentive plans should be self-funding so that the total target value exceeds the total amount of potential incentive payments possible under the plan;
 - Where possible, any incentive payments should be inclusive of any employer contributions to retirement savings or superannuation plans;
 - Offers of any incentive plans and the payment of any variable remuneration must be discretionary, and subject to amendment, substitution or withdrawal at the business unit's discretion at any time, including during a financial year. Notwithstanding achievement of all applicable targets, the company reserves the right to alter or decline payment of any amount under the STI plan where in the company's sole opinion there is good reason to do so.

Long term incentive (LTI) remuneration

- The company has in place an LTI scheme targeted at the Company's executives who are most able to influence the results of the company. The details of Fletcher Building's LTI plan approved by the board will be provided to eligible participants.

Annual remuneration review

- The remuneration of all permanent staff – other than those bound by collective agreements to other dates – is reviewed annually. This review process takes into account the six main factors that contribute towards establishing equitable remuneration levels for individuals – job evaluation, external market relativity, internal relativity, capability, individual performance in role and the company’s ability to pay. To be eligible for an annual review, the employee must have been continuously employed by the company for at least the preceding three months. The company is not obliged to increase an employee’s remuneration following any annual review.

Interim remuneration adjustments

- Interim remuneration adjustments may be made at the company’s sole discretion as a result of for example, a transfer, promotion, or increase in responsibility occurring outside the annual review cycle. Any proposal to adjust remuneration must be supported with appropriate information, and follow the same approval process as set out in the authorities section of this policy.

Special payments

- No special payments – whether to recognise acting appointments, or to retain an employee at risk of leaving the company, or to address location-based pay differences or for any other reason – may be made, or committed to, without prior written approval as per the Fletcher Building Group Delegated Financial Authorities.
- Where possible, special payments will be inclusive of any employer contributions to retirement savings or superannuation plans.

Shareholding requirement

- It is a term of the standard employment agreement for the Executive Committee and some direct reports to Chief Executives, that over time they must acquire and maintain a holding in Fletcher Building Limited ordinary shares. The Company believes a shareholding requirement strengthens the alignment of its Executive Committee and other senior individuals with the interests of shareholders and puts their own remuneration at risk to long-term Company performance.

Amendment

- This policy may be amended or revoked at the company’s discretion at any time.
